SUMMARY OF INFORMATION

Vast open grasslands with trees in the distance were identified at the site. Nocturnal animals such as cats can be found in the far wooded area away from the site. Although the overall area is chilly now (jacket ^{weather} whether) it is usually warm. Near the wornout wooden shack structure, deep tire tracks/treads of jeeps and trucks are in the grass. This small structure is housing drug activity and is guarded. It is a focal point in a communication network for the planned physical distribution of drugs. Few people are present at any one time. The drugs are first transported by land (trucks) and then by airplanes.
